

Look for important variables in the data, and add labels for those variables at each end of the scale.
Map each individual from your research data onto the scale, using a letter to represent them.
Look for patterns: do the same letters appear side-by-side across multiple variables?

